

FOUND 3 DAYS AFTER DEATH

Body of Mrs. Nicholas Brown of Arlington Discovered by Neighbors in Her Home Today.

NOT SEEN SINCE SATURDAY

Suspicious Aroused and Entrance
Into House Leads to Growsome Find—Heart Trouble.

The body of Mrs. Sophronia Brown, age sixty-two years, wife of Nicholas Brown of Arlington, who, from all that can be learned, expired some time last Saturday night or early Sunday morning after she had retired, was found in bed in her home this morning by neighbors who had become suspicious and broke in.

Coroner A. G. Shanck of Arlington believes that Mrs. Brown's death was due to heart trouble, complicated by a pulmonary hemorrhage which she evidently suffered shortly before her death.

The body had turned black when it was found which adds strength to the belief that Mrs. Brown had been dead for some time. Neighbors are positive that Mrs. Brown has not been seen about the premises since Saturday.

Because of the condition of the body, the funeral services were to be held at the residence late this afternoon, with the Rev. M. Bear, pastor of the Arlington Christian church, in charge. Burial was to be made in the Arlington East Hill cemetery. Mrs. Brown was a member of the Christian church.

Although Mrs. Brown had never complained of heart trouble, symptoms of the disease have cropped out in the family before this. Mrs. Brown's brother, Thomas Allender, dropped dead several years ago while he was standing in front of a mirror preparing to attend church.

James Allender, a brother of the deceased and the last of a family of eight children, who lives on the old Allender homestead about three miles northwest of Arlington, says that he has had symptoms of heart trouble. No other member of the family has died with this affliction.

Mr. Brown has been in the Deaconess hospital in Indianapolis for several weeks, and it has been the custom of Mrs. Brown to visit him often. Neighbors believed that she was in Indianapolis as it is reported that she told some people Saturday that she intended to spend Sunday with her husband.

James Allender said he feared the probable effect of the growsome find on Mr. Brown. He has been in a critical condition for some time and his death almost expected.

When she went to Indianapolis, Mrs. Brown had been in the habit of leaving the key to her home with neighbors so they could care for her chickens. When no one was seen about the house Sunday, Monday or Tuesday, the natural supposition was that Mrs. Brown was in Indianapolis.

Late yesterday afternoon, however, neighbors became suspicious and went over and examined the premises. They found the doors all locked and then felt sure Mrs. Brown was in Indianapolis. They were somewhat, alarmed, though, when they discovered that the chickens were fastened up and apparently were very hungry and thirsty when the door to the coop was opened.

Neighbors did not attempt to break into the house until this morning. First they telephoned Mrs. J. F. Downey who inquired at the I. & C. traction station to know if Mrs.

SESSION OF GRAND LODGE

Several From Here Attend Eastern Star Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Indiana Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, opened this morning at the Masonic Temple in Indianapolis. The first day's session will be taken up with the election of officers. Several local members attended. The delegates from here are Mrs. J. Q. Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Carmichael. The board of directors of the Indiana Eastern Star Home, of which Earl H. Payne is a member, met yesterday and received a report of those who have been in charge of soliciting funds for the proposed building. During the year nearly $5,000 has been raised and the total is now $20,000.

CECIL MARSHALL WAS IN HAMILTON

Young Woman Friend Received Post
Card From Him and he is Expected to Return.

MOTHER GREATLY IMPROVED

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Marshall, living west of the city, who were greatly concerned over the disappearance of their son Cecil, have received word from him through an indirect source and have reason to believe that he will soon return home. Mrs. Marshall, who has been seriously ill since the boy left home and whose life was said to hinge on his return was greatly improved today and will recover.

The word from young Marshall was received late yesterday afternoon. A young woman friend of boy received a card from him stating that he would likely be home any time now. The card was sent from Hamilton, Ohio, and as the last that his parents could learn of his whereabouts he was in Indianapolis, this shows that no harm has come to him. The Marshalls were immediately notified of the card and when it was learned that he was safe his mother improved and has ceased to worry. Emory Marshall, a brother of Cecil Marshall, was lost from his parents during the recent flood but is now in Mattoon, Illinois.

SEARCH FOR CAR THIEVES

Connersville Police Fail to Find Robbers Here.

Chief of police Lewis, Sheriff Ferguson and Policeman Gray of Connersville were here this afternoon looking for a gang of men that broke into a merchandise car there last night. A large amount of goods was stolen and the Connersville officers believed it was a gang of men that had been employed on the railway south of Connersville. About thirty of the men quit yesterday and went through Connersville. The Connersville officers with the local police searched the crowd east of here but found nothing. The men are walking through to Indianapolis.

PAVING TO COST CITY $25,000

Council Receives Order From Commissioners Requiring This Sum
For Perkins Street Improvement

REFUSES TO TAKE ACTION

Question Will Likely be Fought Out in Court—Not as First Represented.

The city council met in special session last night to hear remonstrators on the proposed improvement of Julian street with cement curb, gutter and sidewalks. None of the property owners appeared before the council and the improvement went through. Bids will be received May 20.

But this feature of the meeting was a very small matter. The real sensation of the session came when an order from the county commissioners asking the city to pay $25,000 towards the improvement of Perkins street was read. The city had been led to believe that the property owners would have to pay that part of the improvement which was greater than the average expense of the roads in the township outside of the city. The council refused to take any action on the order of the commissioners and before it is finally settled a law suit may result.

When the resolution giving the commissioners the right to improve the streets was passed it was argued by attorneys that the cost of the improvement could not be brought back on the city but that the property owners would be assessed the difference of the cost within the city and that outside. The order sent to the council by the commissioners is directly opposite to the plan under which the city understood the improvement would be paid. The city is already in a bad financial condition and it would be a hardship to declare a $25,000 bond issue.

The law since the putting in of Main and Second streets has been amended and it is now stated that the way the commissioners want the street paid for is the proper way. The council it is understood does not look very favorably upon the plan to spend $25,000 and a test case may result.

The order of the board of commissioners is as follows: In the matter of the petition of Charles H. Alger et al., for highway.—Comes now the board of commissioners and it is now shown to the satisfaction of the board and the board finds the fact to be that the expense per mile of the improvement of the said Charles H. Alger et al., highway is greater than the average expense of the improvement of the roads in Rushville township outside of the city of Rushville, Indiana. And said board finds that the difference between the average expense of the improvements of highways in said Rushville township outside of the corporate limits of the city of Rushville and the costs of the improvement of the said Charles H. Alger et al., highway is $25,000. That the said city of Rushville, Indiana should pay the said sum of $25,000 as provided by chapter 143 of the acts of 1909 approved March 8, 1909, being an act to amend Section 1 of an act entitled "An Act to Amend Sections 70 and 75 of an act entitled 'An act Concerning Highways', approved February 25, 1907; and sections 72 of an act entitled 'An Act Concerning Highways' approved March 6, 1905."

It is therefore ordered by the

MILROY SCHOOL CONTRACT LET

Bert Andersen of Lynn, Ind., Gets Job For $29,000 After Plans Are Changed.

FEW THINGS ARE OMITTED

Officials Resort to This Plan to Keep Within Appropriation Which Was Limit to be Spent.

The contract for the Milroy school building was awarded today to Bert Andersen of Lynn, Indiana, for $29,000. M. Anderson agreed in accepting the contract to pay $600 for the ruins of the old building which burned last winter and which the new building will replace.

The awarding of the contract for the building has caused the Anderson township trustee and the township advisory board no end of trouble. The letting was originally set for Thursday, April 3, but had to be postponed on account of the flood.

The postponement was for two weeks and the bids were finally opened last Thursday. Then another problem confronted the advisory board and the trustee. All of the bids were in excess of the appropriation that was allowed under the law. The appropriation could not necessarily be very great else it would exceed the limit of bonded indebtedness. The township was in debt on the other building when it burned down.

It was first said that there might be some loop hole in the law which would allow the township to spend money in excess of the bonded indebtedness limit in this particular case because of the misfortune that befell the community when the school building burned.

But this was impossible and the only avenue left open was for a change in the specifications so that the structure could be erected for a sum within the bonded indebtedness limit. The auditorium and the gymnasium will be left out of the building for the present and will be added later when the finances of the township will allow it. Allowance will be made for the additions when the building is erected.

The contract as awarded to Mr. Anderson does not include the heating and plumbing. These specifications, too, will have to be cut down considerably to keep within the limit, and the contract for this part will have to be awarded later. There were a few other minor omissions from the original specifications.

The proposed building has been a constant source of worry for the township officials. As soon as the old structure burned the discussion of changing the site was renewed. There was a faction which wanted the new building across the railroad. The question was settled by a special election and the faction favoring the old site won out.

The original bids submitted, the second amount being the figures for the ruins, are as follows: Pulse & Porter, $37,486, $1,860; W. M. Cotton, $38,494, $1,000; Dunlop & Co., $39,737, $875; Bender Co., $37,239, $2,000; Bert Anderson, $37,669, $600; Charles F. Klein, $43,691, $100; William Everly, $38,487, $1,500; Howard Elliott, $39,950, $2,500; James Green & Son, $37,200, $1,060; M. M. Winship, $39,852, $500; J. L. Galbraith & Bro., $40,390, $100; Stephen Parcel, $44,533, $500; Consolidated Construction Co., $39,873, no offer for old building; R. S. Moore, $43,600, $800 to be added if contractor removes the old building.

FIRE DESTROYS TWO SHEDS

Elbert Carr Sustains a Loss of $300.

Two sheds at the home of Elbert Carr in West First street were set on fire yesterday afternoon by a Pennsylvania train. Mr. Carr sustained a loss of $300 with no insurance. The sheds contained a number of farming implements and a quantity of hay and straw. The fire department was called but as there is no water plug within several hundred feet of the house it was impossible to lay a line of hose. The Carr residence is just outside of the city limits and it was necessary to fight the flames with a bucket brigade.

ISSUES WARRANT FOR $ 676 TWICE

County Auditor Holden Discovers
Mistake Too Late Because it Had Been Cashed.

WILL TRY TO RECOVER SUM

Allen R. Holden, county auditor, and C. F. Bales, the deputy auditor, have been sweating blood, to make it plain, since they discovered that they had paid out a claim for $676 twice and they are now taking steps to get the money back again.

O'Conner Brothers, who have the contract and are building the Alsmann highway south of the city, were allowed an estimate of $676 a few months ago by the commissioners. The warrant was drawn and that was the end of the proceeding.

The other day a man named Long, who is employed by the contracting firm, walked into the auditor's office and told the county auditor his firm had never received its last estimate. County Auditor Holden was very obliging about it and issued the warrant to Long a second time. When the mistake was discovered, the deputy auditor made the rounds of the banks and found it had been cashed.

GYPSIES BELONGED TO SECRET ORDERS

Men of Party Here Today Were Members of Masonic and K. of P. Lodges.

WERE GOING TO NEWCASTLE

A band of Gypsies passed through here this morning on their way to Newcastle. The gypsies attracted considerable attention, not because of their dress or queer talk, but from the fact that the men belonged to several secret orders. One of the wagons had a Masonic emblem painted on the side and the men proved to the satisfaction of local Masons that they belonged to the order, having membership in the lodge at Dalton, Ga. Besides Masons there were also Knights of Pythias and Odd Fellows in the party. This unusual thing created considerable talk but it is said the men were all that they professed to be. The gypsies were South Americans and spoke Spanish. The women in the party scattered over the city telling fortunes. This band of gypsies is said to be the same that passed through here last year.

ACT AUTHORIZES LOAN COMPANIES

Rural Building and Loan Associa-

ADOPTION LAWS ARE AMENDED

Another Act Provides For Bureau of Boiler Inspection in Indiana to Prevent Accidents.

One act of the last legislature makes possible the establishment of rural building and loan associations in cities the size of Rushville and larger. There was no emergency to the clause to the act.

Two amendments to earlier laws concerning the adoption of children were passed which makes that legal transaction different than it formerly was. Another act of the last general assembly provides for boiler inspection. All of these acts are described in the following:

Senate Bill 488 (Chapter 265), approved March 15, authorizes not less than ten citizens to organize and incorporate as a rural loan and savings association. They may adopt any corporate name, not the same nor similar to the name of another association, but the word "rural" must be included as part of the corporate name. Guaranty stock to the amount of $30,000 in county seats with less than 25,000 inhabitants, and $50,000 in cities of between 25,000 and 50,000 inhabitants, $100,000 in cities of over 50,000 inhabitants, must be subscribed before organization. Articles of incorporation are to be signed and acknowledged, but it is not stated what is to be done with them, nor whether they shall be filed in any public office. Rural loan and savings associations organized under this act "shall have and may use the rights, powers and privileges herein given and allowed, and also those of the domestic building and loan associations under the laws of this state, and shall be subject to the duties, the examinations

The "first aid to the perplexed" in the administration of the household should be the advertising columns of THE DAILY REPUBLICAN.

You were looking at the tablecloth today and that brought up the question of table linens.

This ought to be a good time to buy tablecloths and napkins.

Watch the announcements of the reliable stores that advertise in THE DAILY REPUBLICAN.

And, speaking about table linens, weren't you thinking of a new rug for the dining room, new curtains, another couch cover?

Perhaps something was said about replenishing the cut glass supply or a new china cabinet or a buffet.

And what about a new refrigerator this season? A fine up-to-date sanitary refrigerator is not in the luxury class any more; it is a necessity.

Take your housekeeping problems to the advertising columns of THE DAILY REPUBLICAN. It is the business of the stores represented there to help you.

"Clincher" Paint

We know a paint which holds to the wood like a driven nail. Seasoned lumber is porous. The pores are the empty sap-cells. White lead paint, which dries on the wood in the form of a solid, elastic film, fastens into these pores, and the whole coat of paint is actually riveted like armor-plate to the surface it decorates and protects.

Eckstein White Lead
(Dutch Boy Trade Mark)
and Pure Linseed Oil

make the paint that spreads into a solid body. It becomes a part of the wood itself—an outer layer that preserves the life of the lumber.

We sell it as well as other painting requisites. Come in and have a talk with us about painting.

The Two "Dark Days."

There are two "dark days" mentioned in the annals of New England. The first occurred on Oct. 21, 1716, when it suddenly became so dark soon after noon that the people were forced to use artificial lights to do their ordinary work. This strange condition of the atmosphere lasted about three and a half hours. Again, on May 19, 1780, there was a remarkable darkening of the atmosphere, but the phenomenon did not come on so suddenly as that upon the earlier date. The darkness in this latter instance began between 10 and 11 o'clock on the morning of the day named and lasted throughout the day. The darkness extended from the northeastern part of New England westward as far as Albany and southward to Pennsylvania. The most intense and prolonged darkness, however, was confined to Massachusetts, more especially to the seaboard. It is said to have come from the southwest, but there is no mention of it made in the history of Ohio or the Virginias. The exact cause still remains one of the unexplained mysteries.

"Warned Off" the Turf.

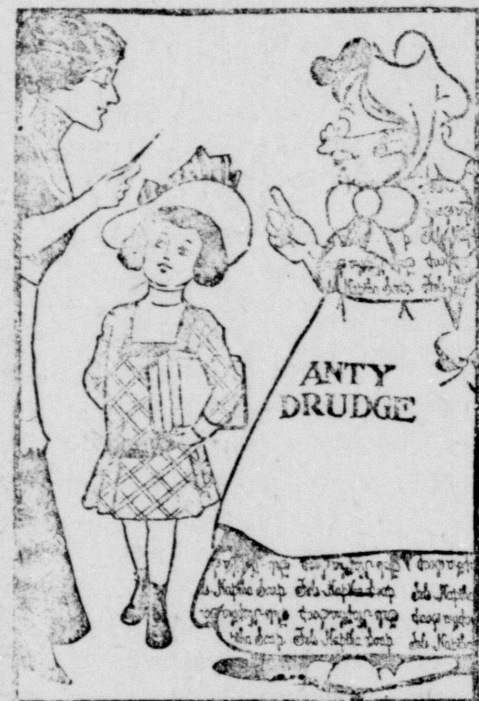

To be "warned off" is the most severe sentence that can be imposed on any one in England connected with the turf. Not only does it debar a man from owning, training or riding horses, but until the committee decides to revoke the punishment prevents him even from showing himself on any race course. This is so owing to the fact that the decision of the national hunt committee is registered automatically by the racing authorities in France and Ireland and of course by the Jockey club. Like the national hunt committee, the stewards of the Jockey club also reserve to themselves the right of summoning any rider whom they suspect of sharp practices or even carelessness to appear before them and, unless the explanation given proved satisfactory, to "suspend" or punish the offender in some other way.—London Answers.

Turner's Carelessness.

Perhaps the most prolific painter who ever lived was the great Turner. When he died his house in Queen Anne street, which he had not occupied for a long time, was found to be full of masterpieces all going to rack and ruin. Even the famous "Crossing the Brook," one of the priceless treasures of the National gallery in Trafalgar square, was there, with large pieces chipped off it. Many of Turner's masterpieces which he had refused to sell for "love or money" were almost ruined by the damp coming from defective windows and ceilings. There were, besides the oil paintings, literally thousands of water color drawings "chucking about the place," any one of which would draw a little fortune at this moment from the pocket of an American millionaire. By his will he left them all to the nation.—London Spectator.

Speed of Flying Ducks.

How fast do ducks fly? Is a question that sportsmen have long debated. A correspondent of Forest and Stream throws some definite light on it. Business requires him to ride frequently on a railroad in New York state that skirts a large lake. Wild fowl, startled by the train, will sometimes fly for a long distance parallel to the track at a speed the same as that of the train; hence it was easy, by timing them and getting the speed rate of the train from the conductor, to learn how fast they were going. The rate varied from forty-seven miles an hour to a little over fifty. The belief of gunners that ducks sometimes travel at the rate of a mile a minute is therefore not far from the truth.

Theodore—"Please, Miss Brown, my mother was so busy stirring the boiling clothes in the washboiler that she couldn't get us our breakfast and dress us in time for school. That's why I'm late."

Anty Drudge—"Theodore, you tell your mother to use Fels-Naptha Soap next Monday, and I'll guarantee you'll never be late for school on account of the washing."

One of the greatest blessings of Fels-Naptha Soap is its quick action. Fels-Naptha Soap, in cool or lukewarm water, will thoroughly loosen dirt in your clothes. While the clothes soak you are free to do other work. Then rub lightly, rinse and the clothes are ready for the line.

Fels-Naptha Soap kills Monday drudgery. But it must be used the Fels-Naptha way—no boiling, no hot water.

PLAN DESIGNED TO CONCEAL THE FACTS

Charges Brought Against the New Haven By Brandeis.

Boston, April 23.—That John L. Billard of Meriden, Conn., made an alleged profit of $2,700,000 by the purchase from the New England Navigation company of its stock control of the Boston & Maine railroad and its transfer back to the navigation company and resale to the Boston railroad holding company, the bonds of which are guaranteed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, was referred to in detail during the hearing which is being conducted by Interstate Commerce Commissioner Prouty. David E. Brown, the commission's accountant, said that in the whole transaction he could find no record which seemed to show that Mr. Billard had paid much principal in money. It was shown in the testimony about steamship lines that some of the steamers were scrapped within three years after the New England Navigation company, one of the New Haven subsidiaries, had paid a large price for them.

In regard to the navigation company, Louis D. Brandeis said that it was not a navigation company at all, not even a holding company, but a medium which juggled accounts with the New Haven. The plan, Brandeis said, was intended to conceal the facts from the public by shifting accounts back and forth. He said that he wanted to bring out that dividends were paid out of capital and not actually earned, and that the actual capital had shrunk out of all proportion to the dividends paid. The plan, said Brandeis, was to pay from the New Haven to the navigation company, and then a few days later from the navigation company to the New Haven. President Mellen of the New Haven has issued a statement denying emphatically that he had profited by transactions in the stock of the New Haven or any of its subsidiary companies.

SHE REGAINED HER LIBERTY

But in Doing So Took a Mighty Desperate Chance.

Pittsburg, April 23.—Taking a desperate chance for her liberty, Dora Moore, while enroute to this city from Detroit in the custody of a detective, leaped from an express train going at full speed, near Wooster, O., and made a clean getaway.

The woman was being brought to this city with Bennie Levine. The latter had jumped his bond of $2,500 after being convicted of white slavery, and the Moore woman, who was the principal witness against Levine, disappeared with him. They were captured last week in Detroit.

After the train left Wooster the Moore woman made a dash for the door at one end of the car and Levine made for the door at the other end. The detective overtook Levine, but the woman jumped from the train and disappeared.

STUCK IN THE MUD ON HER TRIAL TRIP

World's Greatest Steamship
Humbled at Outset.

Hamburg, April 23.—Being towed out for her trial trip, the Hamburg-American liner, Emperor, 900 feet long, became unmanageable, broke away from six tugs, swung around crosswise of the Elbe and brought up hard and fast in the mud. Her monster tonnage carried the liner far into the mud bank and all efforts to dislodge her proved unavailing. Six tugs, after working frantically for several hours, were reinforced with others, but their combined efforts were unsuccessful. Later the great vessel floated with the rising tide and proceeded out to sea. The Emperor, so far as superficial examination revealed, was not damaged.

The trial trip of the Emperor has been planned for the latter part of the month, and reports have been printed that Emperor William would be among a party of distinguished Germans who would accompany the trial board on the first trip.

The Emperor, when she goes into commission with the start of her maiden voyage to New York on May 28, will be the largest vessel sailing. Her keel was laid two years ago, 900 feet in length, or almost double that of Germany's largest warship. Her other dimensions are 96 feet beam and 62 feet depth.

It is said that officials of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads will be given until July 1 to bring about the dissolution of the two lines.

With the consideration of the Underwood tariff bill now under way, the house will meet at 11 o'clock daily and remain in session until a late hour every night. It is expected the bill will be passed and transmitted to the senate about May 15.

BORDER SCALED BY AEROPLANES

Latest Cause of Franco-German Irritation.

TROUBLE MAY COME OUT OF IT

Another Involuntary Invasion of French Territory by German Aerial Craft Has Fanned the Embers of Bitterness, Resulting in an Official Interchange Having as Its Object the Creation of New Regulations.

Nancy, April 23.—Tension between France and Germany has been increased by another aviation incident on the frontier. Captain Von Davall, chief aviation inspector at Darmstadt, and Lieutenant Von Mirbach, in a military biplane, landed a little to the northward of Arracourt, which is hardly two miles from the frontier and twelve miles from Luneville, where the German military dirigible Z4 landed only a few days ago and was held up for some time until proper explanations were made.

As this is the third incident of this kind within a short time, there is considerable excitement on both sides of the border. The first case was the landing of the Z4 at Luneville. The next was the case of six German commercial travelers who attended a theatrical performance here, where there was a burlesque of the German army. The travelers hissed the performance and were promptly drummed out of town. The local officials at Nancy were suspended for their failure to take action in the matter, as the German government made an emphatic protest, but public sympathy is with them and they will probably be appointed to some other service.

France is now considering the question of three years' compulsory military service instead of two, and there is a bill before the German reichstag providing for an appropriation for the army of $260,000,000. The reichstag is also discussing the charges made by Dr. Liebknecht, the Socialist leader, to the effect that the Krupps of Essen have been trying to stir up trouble between Germany and France in order to make a market for their armor and armaments. It is charged that certain German officials are involved in this scandal.

The latest affair ended in an amicable manner. The two German officers landed near Arracourt, which became distinguished a few months ago when it gave cheerful obedience to a mobilization order issued by the postmaster, who had misinterpreted a cipher message.

The little daughter of the mayor of Arracourt was the first person to reach the spot where the air machine landed. The two German officers asked her in French "Where are we?" The little girl replied that they were on French territory. Whereupon one of the officers said in French in an emphatic manner, "Nom de Dieu."

There was great excitement at once. M. Raboul, the new police chief of Nancy, the military police and the French customs officers hastened to the spot. The German airmen declared that they were flying from Darmstadt to Metz and had been compelled to descend because they ran short of fuel. They believed that they were landing on German territory.

The sub-prefect of the town and other officials made an investigation and meanwhile the German machine was held pending an investigation. Notification of the landing was telegraphed to the French ministers of war and interior. After investigation the authorities issued an order that the German officers should be allowed to depart, as they were convinced that the latter had a correct statement as to the reasons for their descent on French territory. A semi-official communique was issued, in which it was stated that the authorities regarded the landing of the biplane as an unavoidable incident and that the biplane had gone some three miles in French territory without the knowledge of the aviators. The machine was released and the German aviators immediately started for home.

The foreign office, however, took cognizance of the incident, probably because of the fact of Germany's official protest against the treatment of the drummers at the Nancy theater. Instructions were sent to M. Jules Cambon, the French ambassador at Berlin, to call the attention of the German government to the serious inconvenience of these repeated and regrettable incidents. M. Cambon was instructed to ask Germany to take measures to avoid the recurrence of such incidents and to appoint a commission to discuss with France the drafting of rules in regard to future affairs of this nature and to reach a decision in regard to what is called "aeronautical difficulties."

Flood Prevention.

The congress that met in St. Louis last week added materially to general information on the subject of floods and drainage, and shows that it is working along the lines of national advancement. This year's lesson in floods has been the most impressive in the whole list. Some of the most beautiful and thrifty valleys in the country have been ravaged by deluges of extraordinary height, several cities have suffered terribly, and some farm neighborhoods find that their once rich fields are now but gravel beds. The legislatures in the states thus afflicted will take up the subject of flood control immediately, resolved to avert any more such calamities. Their nature can be thoroughly studied, and their dangers minimized if not prevented altogether. A flood's high mark is a warning of what may happen again if proper measures are neglected.

Flood control is a case of public self-defense. Levees, diversion channels, dams and reservoirs cost money. But floods cost money, as well as cause great human suffering. The test by dollars and cents calls for action, and it is only one of the arguments. There is not a state legislature in the whole forty-eight that should not take an active part in the investigation and control of floods. Congress and the administration will recognize it as an urgent issue. Floods are certain, and if nothing could be done to render them harmless, or even an advantage, a system of efficient rescue work would have to be organized. But engineering science holds that rivers can be restrained and utilized beyond anything accomplished in this direction in the past. The congress of last week strengthened this idea by the presentation of the valuable facts it has been gathering.

Fell Down Hard.

(Detroit Free Press.)

There is much in the returns of Michigan's election to give pleasure to the Republican party. Its nominees have not only won in a sharp contest, but for the most part they have won by majorities recalling those of former days when Michigan set the pace for landslides to Republicanism. The outcome will go far to restore confidence not only in our own state, but throughout the union, for everywhere eyes have been on Michigan at this time. The nation has been watching to see whether the tendency toward reunion displayed in the municipal contests of St. Louis and Chicago would be revealed in state-wide areas, and an unmistakable answer has been given to the question.

A serious setback has also been administered to the Progressive bolt movement. It has wretchedly failed to show any sign of its strength in the preceding election, and has learned, what observant students had surmised before, that its dependence was on one man and that when that man was not a candidate it had little appeal to the electorate. This election should hasten the disappearance of the Progressive organization, and assist the full recovery of the Republican party by accelerating the dissipation of the force that has brought its temporary difficulties.

It matters little whether or not the county expert provision of the vocational educational act was put in to make jobs for Purdue graduates, the fact still remains that other counties in Indiana have already followed such a plan and have found it highly successful. There is little doubt but that a county expert could be helpful if the farmers were in sympathy with such a project. He could probably bring advanced ideas in farming that would increase the yields in a few years so that it netted more for the right side of ledger and many farmers could gain as much knowledge as they now get by attending a Purdue short course. It seems but a question of years before such a plan will be in effect here. Rush county might as well be first as last.

When spring comes the city man longs for the country, and the scent of violets. If he were there, what he would get mostly would be the sweet whiffs of phosphate.

Instead of forcibly feeding women prisoners over here, the American public would feel profound satisfaction not to have to pay for their board.

Here's Where The Fun Comes In A Tricky Host.

Recently a young married couple "walked in" on another man and his wife, who lived in the same house, to spend the evening. Cards were suggested, and the four began with great vim and interest. The host is a man of regular habits. He moved in from the country a few months ago, and life on the farm is conducive to "early to bed, early to rise" etc. At nine o'clock he began to yawn and the guests thought nothing of it. It is doubtful if they noticed it. Finding that plan did not bring results, the host began to complain of a sore tooth. It was some time before he could attract attention with that. Finally when he had begun to walk the floor with his hand to his jaw and an agonized expression which could denote nothing but pain, the guests began to notice the antics of their host. With all of his trickery the guests did not realize that they should go home until about midnight. Then they left hurriedly. The next morning host and guest men on the stairway.

"Have a good night's sleep?" asked the guest innocently, intending to be sympathetic.

"Yes, after midnight," replied the host dryly.

heard that the said city of Rushville, Indiana should pay said extra expense in the sum of $25,000. It is further ordered by the board that a certified copy of this order be mailed to the said city of Rushville. The order was passed April 7.

Before adjourning the council assessed damages, amounting to $300, for the proposed opening of Willow street from the Pennsylvania railroad to Tenth street. At present the street ends at the railroad and a petition was presented about a year ago asking the council to open the street. It will not be necessary for the city to assess benefits equal to its damages to be paid the property owners for the ground taken in putting the street through. It is understood that the city has the right to assess benefits to almost every property owner in that section of the city. The property owners will be given a chance to remonstrate against the assessment. The council also talked as though the street might be opened through to Eleventh street, instead of stopping at Tenth street.

Jury is Expected to Get Damage Suit Today.

The damage suit of Jesse B. Creed against John W. Gahimer, demanding $300 was expected to go to the jury late this afternoon. Creed alleges that he lost a valuable horse on account of the carelessness of Gahimer. He claims that Gahimer threw some calcium carbide over into a field and that the horse was poisoned. Gahimer on the stand this morning testified that he had eaten a teaspoon full of calcium carbide to show the neighbors that the chemical was not poison. The case is being tried before Judge Broadbent.

WILL WAIT ONLY FEW DAYS

For Owners of Dogs to Pay Taxes.

Township Trustee, J. Vincent Young sends out the annual warning to owners of dogs, who have not paid the tax that it is now over due and only a few days will be given until the list is given to the prosecutor. The list is the largest in years containing over fifty names of men who have not paid their dog taxes for this year. The law for failure to pay the tax is very severe and the trustee is compelled to give the names over to the prosecutor. The delinquent list for last year will also be turned over to the prosecutor. Mr. Young will hold the list open not later than May 1.

"Doris," he urged again, and this time she turned in his direction and gazed, aghast. If the voice were strange, what of the face which now confronted her. The ravages of sickness had been marked, but they were nothing to those made in an instant by a blasting grief. She was startled, although expecting much, and could only press his hands while she waited for the question he was gathering strength to utter. It was simple when it came; just two words: "How long?"

She answered them as simply: "Just as long as you have been ill," said she; then, with no attempt to break the inevitable shock, she went on: "Miss Challoner was struck dead and you were taken down with typhoid on the self-same day."

"Struck dead? Why do you use that word, struck? Struck dead! she, a young woman. Oh, Doris, an accident! My darling has been killed in an accident!"

"They do not call it accident. They call it what it never was. What it never was," she insisted, pressing him back with frightened hands, as he strove to rise. "Miss Challoner was—How nearly the word shot had left her lips. How fiercely above all else, in that harrowing moment had risen the desire to fling the accusation of that word into the ears of him who listened from his secret hiding-place. She refrained out of compassion for the man she loved, and declared instead, "Miss Challoner died from a wound; how given, why given, no one knows. I had rather have died myself than have to tell you this. Oh, Mr. Brotherson, speak, sob, do anything but—"

She started back, dropping his hands as she did so. With quick intuition she saw that he must be left to himself if he were to meet this blow without succumbing. The body must have freedom if the spirit would not go mad. Conscious, or perhaps not conscious, of his release from her restraining hand, albeit profiting by it, he staggered to his feet, murmuring that word of doom: "Wound! wound! my darling died of a wound! What kind of a wound?" he suddenly thundered out. "I cannot understand what you mean by wound. Make it clear to me. Make it clear to me at once. If I must bear this grief, let me know its whole depth. Leave nothing to my imagination or I cannot answer for myself. Tell it all, Doris."

And Doris told him: "She was on the mezzanine floor of the hotel where she lives. She was seemingly happy and had been writing a letter—a letter to me which they never forwarded. There was no one else by but some strangers—good people whom one must believe. She was crossing the floor when suddenly she threw up her hands and fell. A thin, narrow paper-cutter was in her grasp; and it flew into the lobby. Some say she struck herself with that cutter; for when they picked her up they found a wound in her breast which that cutter might have made."

"Edith? never!"

The words were chokingly said; he was swaying, almost falling, but he steadied himself.

"Who says that?" he asked.

"It was the coroner's verdict."

"And she died that way—died?"

"Immediately."

"After writing to you?"

"Yes."

"What was in the letter?"

SERIOUS ERROR IN RUSHVILLE

Rushville Citizens Will do Well to Profit by the Following.

Many fatal cases of kidney disease have reached an incurable stage because the patient did not understand the symptoms. Even today in Rushville there are many residents making the same serious error. They attribute their mysterious aches and pains to overwork, or worry, perhaps, when all the time their rheumatic pains, backache and bladder irregularities are most probably due to weak and ailing kidneys. If you are ill, if your kidneys are out of order, profit by this Rushville's resident's experience.

Mrs. William Merrill, 332 West Fourth St., Rushville, Ind., says: "I suffered for quite awhile from weakness in my back. I had a dull pain over my kidneys, often accompanied by headaches. The simplest of my household duties was a burden. I finally got Doan's Kidney Pills at Johnson's Drug Store and used them. They proved their merits by entirely relieving me."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

"Nothing of threat, they say. Only just cheer and expressions of hope. Just like the others, Mr. Brotherson."

"And they accuse her of taking her own life? Their verdict is a lie. They did not know her." Then, after some moments of wild and confused feeling, he declared, with a desperate effort at self-control: "You said that some believe this. Then there must be others who do not. What do they say?"

"Nothing. They simply feel as you do. They see no reason for the act and no evidence of her having meditated it. Her father and her friends insist besides, that she was incapable of such a horror. The mystery of it is killing us all; me above others, for I've had to show you a cheerful face, with my brain reeling and my heart like lead in my bosom."

She held out her hands. She tried to draw his attention to herself; not from any sentiment of egotism, but to break, if she could, the strain of these insupportable horrors where so short a time before Hope sang and Life revealed in reawakened joys.

Perhaps some faint realization of this reached him, for presently he caught her by the hands and bowed his head upon her shoulder and finally let her seat him again, before he said: "Do they know of—of my interest in this?"

"Yes; they know about the two O. B.'s."

"The two—" He was on his feet again, but only for a moment; his weakness was greater than his will power.

"Orlando and Oswald Brotherson," she explained, in answer to his broken appeal. "Your brother wrote letters to her as well as you, and signed them just as you did, with his initials only. These letters were found in her desk, and he was supposed, for a time, to have been the author of all that were so signed. But they found out the difference after awhile. Yours were easily recognized after they learned there was another O. B. who loved her."

The words were plain enough, but the stricken listener did not take them in. They carried no meaning to him. How could they? The very idea she sought to impress upon him by this seemingly careless allusion was an incredible one. She found it her dreadful task to tell him the hard, bare truth.

"Your brother," she said, "was devoted to Miss Challoner, too. He even wanted to marry her. I cannot keep back this fact. It is known everywhere, and by everybody but you."

"Orlando?" His lips took an ironical curve, as he uttered the word. This was a young girl's imaginative fancy to him. "Why Orlando never knew her, never saw her, never—"

"He met her at Lenox."

The name produced its effect. He stared, made an effort to think, repeated Lenox over to himself; then suddenly lost his hold upon the idea which that word suggested, struggled again for it, seized it in an instant of madness and shouted out:

"Yes, yes, I remember. I sent him there—" and paused, his mind blank again.

Poor Doris, frightened to her very soul, looked blindly about for help; but she did not quit his side; she did not dare to, for his lips had reopened; the continuity of his thoughts had returned; he was going to speak.

"I sent him there." The words came in a sort of shout. "I was so hungry to hear of her and I thought he might mention her in his letter. Insane! Insane! He saw her and—What's that you said about his loving her? He couldn't have loved her; he's not of the loving sort. They've deceived you with strange tales. They've deceived the whole world with fancies and mad dreams. He may have admired her, but loved her—no! or if he had, he would have respected my claims."

"He did not know them."

A laugh; a laugh which paled Doris' cheek; then his tones grew even again, memory came back and he muttered faintly:

"That is true. I said nothing to him. He had the right to court her—and he did, you say; wrote to her; imposed himself upon her, drove her mad with importunities she was forced to rebuke; and—what else? There is something else. Tell me; I will know all."

He was standing now, his feebleness all gone, passion in every lineament and his eye alive and feverish, with emotion. "Tell me," he repeated, with unrestrained vehemence.

"Tell me all. Kill me with sorrow but save me from being unjust."

"He wrote her a letter; it frightened her. He followed it up by a visit—"

Doris paused; the sentence hung suspended. She had heard a step—a hand on the door.

Orlando had entered the room.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Alone.

Oswald had heard nothing, seen nothing. But he took note of Doris' silence, and turning towards her in frenzy saw what had happened, and so was in a measure prepared for the stern, short sentence which now rang through the room:

"Wait, Miss Scott! you tell my story badly. Let him listen to me. From my mouth only shall he hear the stern and seemingly unnatural part I played in this family tragedy." The face of Oswald hardened. Those pliant features—beloved for their gracious kindness—set themselves in lines which altered them almost beyond recognition; but his voice was not without some of its natural sweetness, as, after a long and hollow look at the other's composed countenance, he abruptly exclaimed:

"Speak! I am bound to listen; you are my brother."

Orlando turned towards Doris. She was slipping away.

"Don't go," said he.

But she was gone.

Slowly he turned back.

Oswald raised his hand and checked the words with which he would have begun his story.

"Never mind the beginnings," said he. "Doris has told all that. You saw Miss Challoner in Lenox—admired her and afterwards wrote her a threatening letter because she rejected you."

"It is true. Other men have followed just such unworthy impulses—and been ashamed and sorry afterwards. I was sorry and I was ashamed, and as soon as my first anger was over went to tell her so. But she mistook my purpose and—"

"And what?"

"Orlando hesitated. Even his iron nature trembled before the misery he saw—a misery he was destined to augment rather than soothe. With pains altogether out of keeping with his character, he sought in the recesses of his darkened mind for words less bitter and less abrupt than those which sprang involuntarily to his lips. But he did not find them. Though he pitied his brother and wished to show that he did, nothing but the stern language suitable to the stern fact he wished to impart, would leave his lips.

"Dead!" He shrieked out.

"And ended the pitiful struggle of the moment with one quick, unpremeditated blow," was what he said.

"There is no other explanation possible for this act, Oswald. Bitter as it is for me to acknowledge it, I am thus far guilty of this beloved woman's death. But, as God hears me, from the moment I first saw her, to the moment I saw her last, I did not know, nor did I for a moment dread that she was anything to you or to any other man of my stamp and station. I thought she despised my country birth, my mechanical attempts, my lack of aristocratic pretensions and traditions."

"Edith?"

"Now that I know she had other reasons for her contempt—that the words she wrote were in rebuke to the brother rather than to the man, I feel my guilt and deplore my anger. I cannot say more. I should but insult your grief by any lengthy expressions of regret and sorrow."

A groan of intolerable anguish from the sick man's lips, and then the quick thrust of his reawakened intelligence rising superior to the overthrow of all his hopes.

"For a woman of Edith's principle to seek death in a moment of desperation, the provocation must have been very great. Tell me if I'm to hate you through life—yea through all eternity—or if I must seek in some unimaginable failure of my own character or conduct the cause of her intolerable despair."

"Oswald!" The tone was controlling, and yet that of one strong man to another. "Is it for us to read the heart of any woman, least of all of a woman of her susceptibilities and keen inner life? The wish to end all comes to some natures like a lightning flash from a clear sky. It comes, it goes, often without leaving a sign. But if a weapon chances to be near—(here it was in hand)—then death follows the impulse which, given an instant of thought, would have vanished in a back sweep of other emotions. Chance was the real accessory to this death by suicide. Oswald, let us realize it as such and accept our sorrow as a mutual burden and turn to what remains to us of life and labor. Work is grief's only consolation. Then let us work."

But of all this Oswald had caught but the one word.

"Chance?" he repeated. "Orlando, I believe in God."

"Then seek your comfort there. I find it in harnessing the winds; in forcing the powers of nature to do my bidding."

The other did not speak, and the silence grew heavy. It was broken, when it was broken, by a cry from Oswald:

"No more," said he, "no more."

Then, in a yearning accent. "Send Doris to me."

Orlando started. This name coming so close upon that word comfort produced a strange effect upon him. But another look at Oswald and he was ready to do his bidding. The bitter ordeal was over; let him have his solace if it was in her power to give it to him.

Orlando, upon leaving his brother's room, did not stop to deliver that brother's message directly to Doris; he left this for Truda to do, and returned immediately to his hangar in the woods. Locking himself in, he slightly raised the roof and then sat down before the car which was rapidly taking on shape and assuming that individuality and appearance of sentient life which hitherto he had only seen in dreams. But his eye, which had never failed to kindle at this sight before, shone dully in the semi-gloom. The air-car could wait; he would first have his hour in this solitude of his own making. The gaze he dreaded, the words from which he shrank could not penetrate here. He might even shout her name aloud, and only these windowless walls would respond. He was alone with his past, his present and his future.

HE HAS PLAYED HIS FINAL CARD

Wilson Appeals Direct to People of California.

THE COUNTRY'S GOOD FAITH

This, the President Points Out, is Bound Up in Our Treaty Obligations Toward Japan Which Would Be Disregarded by the Action Proposed by California Legislators to Prohibit Japanese Land Holding.

Washington, April 23.—When received at the White House, Governor Johnson's reply to President Wilson's appeal to California in the matter of the anti-Japanese agitation, the president was pleased with the character of the assurances he received, but on one point the message from the governor seems to be unsatisfactory. President Wilson is very desirous that any legislation which the California legislature passes shall apply to all aliens and not alone to those who are ineligible to citizenship. Mr. Johnson's telegram makes it appear that the legislation to be enacted will relate to "those who are ineligible to citizenship." He adds, however, that the legislation will be general in character. Whether this means that the legislature will conform to the president's desire in having the law apply to all aliens or not is uncertain here.

President Wilson has played his final card in his effort to influence California against the enactment of legislation that will destroy the friendly relations between the United States and Japan. With a view to easing the pressure of public opinion now bearing on California's legislature in favor of passing stringent anti-Japanese land laws, the president issued a direct appeal to the people of that state respectfully protesting against any discrimination against the Japanese and urging Californians and their representatives at Sacramento to act in such a way that the country's good faith cannot be challenged in the light of its treaty obligations.

The president has been repeatedly informed by the California representatives and senators in congress that the people of the state were insisting upon the passage of the legislation which had aroused the protest of the Japanese government. He learned that public sentiment in favor of the legislation was so strong that if the legislature failed to pass a satisfactory law the people themselves through the initiative which they have adopted, might originate and pass a law which would prove much more embarrassing from an international standpoint than any of the bills now pending.

It was with a consideration for this information that the president determined to appeal over the heads of Governor Johnson and the legislature and deal with the people themselves.

ACTION TO TEST RECIPROCAL TAX

Contention Between Insurance Companies and State.

SUIT WILL BE HARD FOUGHT

State's Right to Tax Foreign Insurance Concerns Under the Reciprocal Insurance Tax Laws Has Been Made the Subject of Formal Action in Superior Court at Indianapolis, and Final Decisions May Be Delayed.

Indianapolis, April 23.—Under the reciprocal insurance tax laws the right of the state of Indiana to tax foreign insurance companies, which has been in the county courts in one form or another for the last two years has entered the superior court here, where the state has sued the Continental Insurance company of New York for $51,364.20 alleged to be due because of the different systems of taxation in New York, the home state of the company, and Indiana.

The New York laws provide for a tax of 2 per cent on the gross receipts of an insurance company. The Indiana laws provide for a tax of 3 per cent on the net receipts in the state. The complaint alleges that the New York system, if applied to Indiana, would have made it necessary for the Continental to pay $51,364.20 more than it has since the laws became effective.

The reciprocal tax laws provide that the taxes collected in Indiana from foreign insurance companies shall be the same as those collected by the home state of the company from Indiana insurance companies. The suit against the Continental alleges that the company since 1876 should have paid to the state $180,480.04, instead of $128,783.78 it has paid as taxes. In another paragraph in addition to that based on the reciprocal laws, the company is alleged to have made returns to the auditor of state of less than the amounts on which it should have paid a tax of 3 per cent on the $100. The amount due because of the alleged unreported premiums is $16,118.42.

The controversy there is over whether the company should be taxed on bonuses, dividends and in some cases rebates to policy holders. The same questions were involved in a suit filed against the state June 6, 1912, by the Metropolitan Insurance company, demanding the return to it of money it paid to the auditor of state under protest when he threatened to revoke the company's license.

The litigation between insurance companies and state will be hard fought, as many companies will be affected by the rulings. Final decisions may not be obtained for a long time.

DISMISSED FROM MINISTRY

Case of the Rev. Helt Disposed of by Presbytery.

Evansville, Ind., April 23.—Complete dismissal from the ministry was voted by the presbytery of the Presbyterian church in session here in the case of Dr. Winfield O. Helt, formerly superintendent of the Evansville district of the Indiana Anti-Saloon League. Dr. Helt deserted the league three years ago, after several years of successful work, with the explanation that he believed the organization was defeating its purpose by a too radical program. Charges preferred against him at a meeting of the presbytery in Vincennes were canvassed and the committee recommended a year ago that on his failure to make a defense a suspension from the ministry be ordered. Opportunity for a defense and an exoneration was offered the former anti-saloon worker, but he failed to communicate with the church body at all and the step, removing him from the ministry permanently, was taken. Dr. Helt is reported to be in business in Fort Worth, Tex.

THE FIGHTING CONTINUES

Montenegrins Are Pressing the Turks Hard at Scutari.

Cettinje, April 23.—An official announcement says: "The Montenegrins attacked Scutari on the night of April 21, all along the line. There was fierce fighting throughout the night and sometimes there were bayonet charges. The Montenegrins captured the fortifications on two fronts of the town and still hold them. The Turks tried to recapture them at 7 o'clock this morning, but were repulsed with great loss of life after a bloody fight. The Montenegrins also suffered considerable losses. The fighting continues and the fall of the fortress is imminent."

She Lost Her Suit.
Noblesville, Ind., April 23.—The jury returned a verdict for the defendant in the breach of promise case of Miss Leafy Breedlove of Indianapolis against Jay Voss, a bachelor and wealthy land owner of this county. The case was on trial a week.

Says Pope Must Keep Quiet.
Rome, April 23.—The pope had a sudden fainting fit last evening which was due to his weakness. Dr. Marchi-afava insists that the pope be kept absolutely quiet and that he shall not be allowed to attend to any business.

Former Countess of Yarmouth
Has Just Been Married Again.

Brunswick, Ga., April 23.—Mrs. Copley Thaw, better known as the Countess of Yarmouth, was quietly married yesterday at the home of her sister, Mrs. George Carnegie, at Dungeness, on Cumberland island, to Geoffrey C. Whitney of Boston, Mass. Mrs. Whitney is the divorced wife of the present Marquis of Herford, he having succeeded to that title since she secured the divorce.

DIPLOMATIC DINNERS DRY FOR FIRST TIME

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Set New Style in Washington.

Washington, April 23.—Diplomats are contemplating the unpleasant prospect of a drouth for the coming four years at state affairs given by William Jennings Bryan. Most of the ambassadors were initiated into the aridity of the new diplomatic dinners when the secretary of state and Mrs. Bryan entertained at their hotel with a dinner in honor of the Rt. Hon. James Bryce, the retiring British ambassador, and Mrs. Bryce. Unfermented grape juice and bottled water, but no wines, were served.

The guests included all the most prominent members of the diplomatic corps and their ladies. Dinner was served in the cabinet suite of the hotel. In all eighteen persons sat down. The unfermented grape juice and table water were served as a punch. This is the first time for many years that members of the diplomatic corps have been invited to a formal dinner in Washington where wines have not been served. In the last fifty years there have been secretaries who have not drunk wine, but so far as Washington can remember no secretary of state ever refused to defer to the customs of this and other capitals to the extent of serving temperance drinks at a state dinner.

They Turned Them Loose.
Denver, Col., April 23.—The Industrial Workers of the World, numbering 100, who were placed in jail as vagrants here last week, have been released. The prisoners agreed to leave the city at once and the local branch of the organization promised to "head off" the members who were reported marching on Denver from the west.

GRANDMOTHER USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HER FADED OR GRAY HAIR.

Mixed With Sulphur It Makes Hair Soft, Beautiful; Cures Dandruff.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But the brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own, which is usually too sticky, so insist upon getting Wyeth's, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says his customers insist on Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because, they say, it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

Brown had gone to Indianapolis since Saturday when she was last seen. The agent said she had not unless she stopped a car after the office was closed.

Then Coroner A. G. Shauck was called and entrance was gained through one of the windows. Mrs. Brown was lying on her right side with her arms folded and she apparently had died without a struggle because the bedclothing was not disturbed.

Mrs. A. G. Shauck, wife of the coroner, who lives about two blocks from the Brown home, was the last known person who talked to Mrs. Brown. She called on Mrs. Brown last Saturday evening early and found her in her usual good spirits. She made no complaint of feeling badly. She had been planting potatoes in the small garden patch back of the house.

James Allender, the brother, was at his sister's home late Monday afternoon. He knocked on all the doors but could get no response. He said he thought nothing of the incident, believing that Mrs. Brown was either visiting at the home of someone in Arlington or was at her husband's bedside in Indianapolis.

Mrs. Brown was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Allender and was born on the old home place September 22, 1850. Her father came to Rush county from Kentucky in 1826, and her mother, then Mary Hulan, moved with her parents from Tennessee to the vicinity of Arlington. Mrs. Allender has been dead twenty-six years and Mr. Allender forty years.

The gigantic stature of Mrs. Brown was characteristic of the Allender family. Most of the family measured up to seven feet in height and were angular and healthy. Jacob, the oldest one of eight children, was killed in the army; Stevens, the next, expired of enlargement of the spleen; Thomas died suddenly; Mrs. Sarah Ann Brown died of pneumonia and another one died at the age of five years.

Sarah Ann Brown, was the second wife of Nicholas Brown, and after her death he married her sister Sophrona on May 16, 1899. Mr. Brown has four children by his first marriage.

HUSBAND HAS TO PAY.

Newcastle Courier: Rebecca Brosius, who recently sued Walter Brosius for a divorce and $5,000 alimony, appeared in court this morning with her attorneys and asked that her husband be required to pay her some money each month with which to maintain herself and two children. The court ordered the husband, who is a poultry dealer at Knightstown, to pay her $5 a week and that he pay her $10 with which to fight her divorce case. Brosius gave notice through his attorney that he would file a cross-complaint by Saturday.

MAY USE EITHER RULE HE WISHES

Can Enter State Corn Contest if he Complies With Purdue Regulation.

OTHERWISE HE'S INELIGIBLE

Use of These Rules Will Not Disqualify Entrant in the County Contest.

Rush county boys who contemplate entering the corn growing contest which is being offered by the Peoples Loan & Trust company may stand a chance to compete for the prize offered by Purdue university in the state contest—a free trip to Washington, D. C., for a week—if they will comply with the rules sent out by Purdue.

The rules laid down in the Rush county contest are not stringent. They merely require that the boys raise ten ears of corn and the prize will be awarded, one to each township and a grand prize in the county, for the best display of corn.

The only restriction in the local contest is that the boys must be between ten and eighteen years of age. The age limit was first twenty-one, but the county board of education thought it would be best to change it to eighteen. One boy in each township will get a scholarship to the Purdue short course or its equivalent in cash—although the donors would much rather the winners take the course—and a grand prize of twenty-five dollars in cash will be awarded in the county.

A boy may still have a part in the local contest and work under the Purdue rules. By complying with these rules the contestant would be prepared for the state contest. He would have to work according to the rules from the beginning else he could not take part in the state contest. The Purdue rules are as follows:

1. All contestants shall be between 10 and 18 years of age.
 2. Each contestant shall agree to make a special study of scoring, selecting, planting, cultivating, and harvesting corn.
 3. Each contestant shall grow an acre or more of corn each year.
 4. Each boy shall plant, cultivate, and harvest his own corn. However, if necessary, he may have assistance in breaking and bedding his lands, and harvesting his crop.
 5. Each contestant shall keep a record of the details concerning his plot, work down, and the number of bushels harvested.
 6. Each contestant shall write an account of how he made his crop.
 7. Each boy shall select ten ears grown on his plot and exhibit them at the annual county corn show of the club.
 8. In estimating profits, $5 per acre shall be charged as rent of land. The work of each boy shall be estimated at 10c. per hour, and the work of each horse at 5 cents per hour. Manure shall be charged at the rate of $1.00 for each one-horse wagon load, and $2.00 for each two-horse wagon load.
 9. Each member shall take an active part in the meetings of the club when requested, shall read all instructions of demonstration work, and shall do everything he can toward making the club a success.
 10. In awarding premiums the following basis shall be used:
 - a. Greatest yield per acre . . . 30 points
 - b. Best exhibit of ten ears . . . 20 points
 - c. Best written account of crop 20 points
 - d. Best showing of profit of investment 30 points
- Total 100 points

Mrs. Lowell M. Green has received word that her sister, Mrs. Axie Giltner of Pittsburgh, Pa., is seriously sick. Mrs. Giltner recently moved from Anderson to Pittsburgh and visited here while on her way to her new home. Mrs. Giltner's mother is at her bedside.
